

Emerging Leaders
Get connected. Make a difference. Lead.
Join The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
Dean's Council as an Emerging Leader

In The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University, we encourage our students and faculty to go beyond the expected and pioneer solutions to society's most pressing issues. We're inspired by the constantly changing world around us, which is why we need talented young professionals to serve as advisers on our college's Dean's Council. You can help us make the world a better place.

Position yourself and our college for success

Emerging Leaders is an exclusive group of new professionals – who graduated 10 years ago or less – who invest in the college, not only financially but with their time.

As an Emerging Leader on the Dean's Council, you'll help define how a university education can make a difference in our community by focusing on higher education initiatives, providing input to the dean on new ways for the college to succeed and serving as ambassadors of the college.

Connect with other leaders

Emerging Leaders is a network of passionate, early to mid-career professionals who serve on The Dean's Council with leaders from a wide range of careers and backgrounds.

As a member, you'll receive the same benefits as a Dean's Council member, including invitations to private receptions with notable speakers. Events include:

- Admission to Emerging Leaders happy hour events
- Networking opportunities with experts, distinguished guests, alumni and like-minded young professionals
- Special leadership and mentoring opportunities

Become an Emerging Leader
